Gary Shimabukuro, President of Lualima Hawaii, an organization that provides drug awareness and prevention education for the workplace and community.

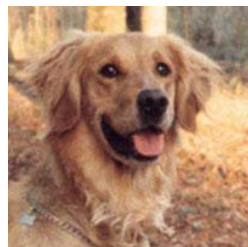

Ed Kubo, US Attorney and Hawaii's top federal prosecutor. The 2004 Healing Our Islands Award Winner.

Come join us for a day of discussion and learning

The HIOSH Advisory Committee meets quarterly. Our next meeting will be the annual Neighbor Island trip we make to ensure that the Neighbor Islands are included in our deliberations. We are meeting this time in Kona, Hawaii on October 6th and in addition to our regular meeting, we will be providing a day of learning and discussion centered around "Drugs in the Workplace" and what you can do about it.

Our agenda

At 8:30 we will welcome attendee and registration will be opened at that time. We have a limited supply of workbooks from the One-Day Workshops put on in 2004 on "Reducing Injury Costs in Your Workplace" that will be available on a first come first service basis. You will also have an opportunity to pick up various HIOSH safety and health materials we will have on hand. The program will start at 9:00. We are pleased to present Gary Shimabukuro who will give a dynamic presentation, which he always does, on his perspective and insights into the drug problems facing Hawaii. At 10:45 we will hear from Interquest Detection Canines from owner Whitney White, a company that performs contraband detection and drug surveys using their trained dogs in schools and workplaces. At 11:00 we are pleased to present Ed Kubo, US Attorney and Hawaii's top federal prosecutor who will share with us the role of law enforcement and the legal system in dealing with the drug problems in Hawaii as well as his experience of dealing with Meth in hotels. From 1:15 to 3:30 We will hold the HIOSH Advisory Committee meeting. HIOSH staff and the Advisory Committee members will also provide insights and solutions you can use in your workplace such as setting up a drug free workplace. The days session will close with a Q & A session and certificates of attendance will be provided for those who registered and attended all the sessions.
